His Home by the Agents.

Friends Who Know the Honest People Interested in the Case.

There is sorrow to-day in the household of Peter and Sebastiana Militci, who live on the disabeth street, though until ten days ago there was no happier family than theirs in that Italian neighborhood.

When the father would come home at 6 o'clock every day from his work he knew no greater pleasure than to dandle the younger of his four children on his knee and stroke the glossy curls of the elder two.

But one day a little over a week ago Peter returned home to find that the pet of his usehold, little Gluseppe, six years of age, was gone. The agents of the Gerry Society had taken him, and in his place had left a ice for the parents to appear in Jefferson Market Court the following day, when the child was to be arraigned. The offense was that he had been found

False notions sometimes become deeply

There is an extremely false idea prevalent among the people that inherited consumption or an inherited weak and delicate condition is necessarily sure at some time to prove fatal.

This is decidedly and supplatically wrong and
